

About us

DelScience is a newly established company in Barcelona, Spain, which provides independent scientific information in niches of biopharmaceutical sciences. Our commitment is to deliver high quality technology intelligence solutions dependent on your demands. At present, information and intelligence services are focused on Nanomedicine and Drug Delivery. Up-to-date information on those fields is followed and analyzed by DelScience's experienced professionals and a network built in universities, research groups and private companies. DelScience's services are based on online information along with customized intelligence services. The latter may be adapted by you following direct interviews in order to meet your specific requirements. By using DelScience's services, you will gain knowledge about your sector while avoiding information overload. Use our services to create strategic advantage and to put your R&D projects ahead. DelScience's customized technology intelligence solutions may include: - Literature and patent search and retrieval- Scientometric studies- Technology assessments- State-of-the-art studies- Competitor identification and analysis Please, go to our Services section to know more about our online information services. DelScience is a fully private company, with no interest in any pharmaceutical or biotechnological company. Full confidentiality is ensured. For further information, please email us at info@delscience.com.